department in the yard.

All sorts of rumors have been flying around the Navy-Yard for the past few days, and when Assistant Secretary of the Navy William McAdoo made a visit there yesterday the heads of the various departments showed considerable anxiety.

One topic of conversation among the employees lately has been the number of places created for broken-down pollticians.

Supporters of the old Brooklyn "ring" who lost their easy berths when Mayor Schleren took office are now well taken care of at the Navy-Yard.

An "Evening World" reporter, in a conversation with one of these men, was told that they all had easy times. Nothing is required of them except to make a "bluff" at working when some one in authority is about. These men are not laborers, although rated as such. They are mostly as clerks, messengers and the like.

Old Navy-Yard men, who have seen their friends discharged, feel very bitter towards the ex-city employees who have taken their places through political influence. It is not unlikely that within a short time a series of charges will be filed in Washington, disclosing to the authorities the present state of affairs.

IDENTIFIED BY A PATIENT.

More Mystery In the Case of Van

Van Nault, who was found conscious on the track of the Glendale dummy road, is still in the Eastern Dis-dummy road, is still in the Eastern Dis-trict Hospital, Williamsburg. The physicians have discovered that his skull was not fractured, but his condi-tion is very serious and he will probably be a maniac for life. On several occasions since he was taken to the hospital Sunday night he has recovered consciousness, but all that could be learned from him was his name. When asked how he received his injuries Van Nault looks puzzled, curses and swears, and then relapses into in-sensibility again. Sonsibility again.

Van Nault was identified last night by Daniel Davis, of 207 Henry street, a patient in the hospital, who was suffering from slight concussion of the brain, the result of being thrown out of his buggy. He was placed in the same ward with Ven Nault the result of being thrown out of his buggy, He was placed in the same ward with Van Nault.

"Hullo. I know that fellow," Davis said this morning when he had recovered consciousness. "His name is Ike Van Nault. He is a laborer and has always been a steady man."

Davis was discharged from the hospital this morning as being completely cured. After he had gone, investigation developed that no man of the name of Davis lived at 307 Henry street.

Another peculiar fact is that the buggy which he owned is still at the Clymer street station, and Davis has apparerally gone away without claiming his rig.

An effort is being made to connect this buggy with the mysterious carriage which the engineer of the dummy train saw crossing the track just before he discovered the body of Van Nault. It is said that Van Nault has a brother, a wealthy farmer, living at Maspeth, L. I. He has been communicated with.

Only McKane's Subordinate.

"I deem it also proper to remind the Court that the prisoner was not the principal promoter and actor in the Gravesend crime, but was himself in a measure the subordinate of John Y. McKane.

"I have already said upon moving other sentences that because of the information as to McKane's participation in the crime obtained by the prosecution would now, if that sentence were to be reimposed, feel it to be their duty to ask for a heavier sentence against him than the one which he now suffers.

"In my opinion the great inequality of position between McKane and Sutherland's present submission, make it proper that the entire punishment of the prisoner, the former sentence included, shall not reach the one-half of the extreme penalty of seven years, I also ask the Court to additionally consider in the prisoner's favor the fact that he has made a complete disclosure of his participation in the wrong-doing.

"Upon the submission of the prisoner to the judgment of the Court, and upon his actually serving out the term of imprisonment to which he shall now be sentenced, the People will not press against him any of the other in.

It was storming at the time, and she asked him to drive her to Eighth avenue and Thirty-sixth street. On arriving there she told him to drive about. He said that he made at least a half a dozen stops at her request. When he finally asked her for the fare, after driving her about for three hours, she insisted that she had paid him. He then chused her arrest.

When arraigned before Justice Feitner she said she gave Frost a dollar. Frost aid she owed him $1, and that she did not give ilm any money. She finally agreed to pay him what he asked, and was then discharged.

What a gratuitous slap in the face the Stewards of the Jockey Club gave Irighton Beach when they replied to Mr. Spier's letter that horsemen would be outlawed if they raced at the unit-censed Beach course to-morrow. They knew then that their members had assured Brighton that matters would be smicably adjusted and that negotiations were peading, yet shey went out of their way to hoast of their authority. How much more pleasant it would have been to say that negotiations were pending, and give horsemen a chance to prepare for the Memorial Day races at the course by the sea. The old maxim that "more files can be caught with sugar than with vinegar" should be studied by the Jockey Club.

"You don't want to change your testimony as a result of seeing Levy, do you?"

"No, sir." said the witness.
"But you had a talk with Levy about your testimony?"
"I might have had."
"So you didn't use any of the $300 Mr. Webb loaned you to pay for your uni-

Webb loaned you to pay for your unform?"
"No, I used it for other things."
"You say you paid your brother $100 that you owed him? When was that?"
"In the latter part of September."
"What did you do with the other $200?"
"I gave Mr. Algeo $50 that I owed him on the books.
"You say you were short in your accounts, because people to whom you delivered packages did not pay you?"
"Yes."

"Yes. "Name some person who owed you money and paid you afterwards."
"Miss Coombes, who keeps "The Chestnuts," a boarding-house at Riverdale. She owed me $10 or $11 last September forgotten now who owed him money for the month of September last.

Mr. Goff gave him a file of delivery slips of the Express Company, and asked him to point out the parcels he had delivered to Miss Cooney. In which he had received no money. On which he had these slips out when he delivered packages, and the persons who received the parcels had to sign them.

He found several, the amount being about $4. Senator Lexow said he did not see the materialty of this, as the witness stated that all the money he had paid to Algeo, he received back again within a few days after from the various persons who owed him money.

"I don't see that he has yet accounted for any more than $100 which he paid to his brother." said the Chairman.

"let him go ahead."
"If I was foolish enough to pay $500 to get on the police force," said the witness with great deliberation. "I would not be foolish enough to tell anybody

A general titter went around the courtroom at this and Mr. Nicoll looked foolish.
That proves conclusively what I have been trying to show," said Mr. Goff, triumphantly.

shea told Chairman Lexow that he fully understood the solemnity of an eath, and then declared that if he had paid money to get on the force he would have no objection to telling the Committee so.

"Don't you know that your life would be made miserable if you did?" put in Mr. Goff.

"I can't say that I do," replied Shea.
"Well, you've just said you

CONTRACTOR BUSTIN INTERVIEWED.

His Long Suffering Miraculous Cure.

Reporter Interviewed Mr. Charles C. Bustin at His Residence, No. 163 East 64th Street, Concerning His Recent Cure.

Mr. Bustin-Well, my case was considered hope less. In fact, my suffering was so great that death would have been a relief, but now I am entirely wired?

Mr. B.—My cure is beyond a doubt. I know whereof I speak, as my knowledge of medicine is in no limited nature. Moreover, I am in ease and comfort. I owe my health and happiness, may, ny very life to Dr. Soreng. Truth as well as gratitude tell me that I cannot speak too highly n his praise, and I would say to other sufferers to also and be healed.

The long suffering and almost miraculous cure of Mr. Bustin excited so much comment that was deemed just to investigate the matter and ay the result before the public. Mr. Bustin is a man in middle life, but he walked and talked with the energy of a boy.

but afterwards said that so many policemen came into his place every day in uniform and in citizen's clothes, he could not remember. He didn't know a policeman named Reagan, but said he had a nephew named Frank Newman, who was a policeman. He had as account in the Germania Bank.

"Did you not draw $300 out of your bank for your nephew when he was appointed?"

"Never. I don't like my nephew."

"When was he appointed?"

"About three years ago, I think. But I don't know anything about it. I don't know where he got the money. He didn't get it from me.

"Oh, he had to pay money, then?"

"I don't know anything about it."

Roth said that Newman's father we a wealthy man, and owned severi houses. He was asked if the house a 14 Delancey street, owned by his brothes in-law, was not a house of ill-fame, and he said he did not know.

John Hogan, a butcher, of 38 Chrystis street, testified that his son, Lawrence, was appointed on the police force about two and a half years ago, but dended that he had ever paid any money to secure the appointment.

"My son was clever and passed a good examination, and I suppose that was the reason he got on the force. I know he did not pay any money. He got his appointment entirely on his merits."

The appointment was pending a year, the witness said, but he could not tell what Commissioner appointed him. Hogan is now attached to the Eleventh Precinct.

A witness named O'Kelly was called for, but he was not in court, and, as there were no more witnesses on hand,
